RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river was at a stand yesterday, with 81/2 feet water in the Indian chute and 71/2 feet in the middle chute. Wheater pleasant.

For St. Louis and Missouri River.—The steamer Meteor, Capt. Draffin, will leave for St. Louis and the Missouri river to-day. The Meteor was built here about a year ago and has capital accommoda-

The Highflyer also leaves for St. Louis to-day.

The Jacob Strader is the mailboat for Cincinnati to-day, and the Dove is the Kentucky river packet. The steamers Empress and Antelope, besides the Baltic and Diana, which we have noticed elsewhere, passed Memphis yesterday. Sinking of the Steamer St. Lawrence.-We learn from the Cincinnati Gazette that the steamer St. Lawrence, Capt. R. D. Cochran, from Pittsburg for New Orleans, sunk in the Ohio opposite Coalport on Monday morning about 2 o'clock. In rounding to after leaving Mason City, late on Sunday night, she struck a rock and sunk in about twenty-five feet water. The steamers Melnotte and Argonaut were coaling at the time at Coalport, and immediately went to her assistance. The Argonaut, belonging to the same Company, took off the St. Lawrence's passengers and crew. The cabin and chimneys of the St. Lawrence broke loose and went overboard, and she sunk in about three-quarters of an hour after she first struck. No lives were lost. The boat and cargo will be a total loss. Her hull dry goods and Pittsburg manufactures. The St. Lawrence was owned by Capt. Cochran, the two clerks, Golding and Cochran, Capt. George McLain, of the Argonaut, and others of Pittsburg. She cost about $25,000, and was two years old.

was breaking in two. She was heavily loaded with

Steamer John Bell Sunk .- The steamer John Bell is reported sunk in the Upper Mississippi, near Warsaw. She was owned by Capt. Vansickle, of this city, and not insured. The John Bell was sunk upwards of a year ago in Red River and subsequently raised.

The steamer Umpire No. 3 damaged her upper works very much on Friday in the Wabash river by running against the piers of Clinton drawbridge.

The steamer W. S. Nelson, from New Orlean with a cargo of groceries, reached Lafayette on Saturday, after having been detained a month near Mt. Carmel owing to the low stage of water. The Wabash was high and rising.

The report of the explosion of the steamer States man is without foundation.

The St. Louis Democrat, of Monday, has the following:

The river continued to rise on Saturday and ves terday at this point with unusual rapidity. In three hours yesterday morning it rose one foot, and continued swelling at the same speedy rate all day. Men were engaged from an early hour in moving hemp and other articles of merchandise to a safe distance fram the fast advancing river. About ter feet of a further rise would bring the water to the sidewalks, which would cause an incalculable amount of annoyance and obstruction, when there is so much s to be transacted in that important local ty e. The river here begins to look like a sea and it rushes past with tremendous velocity. Co-pious rains have fallen upon and partially deluged a vast extent of country east, west, and north of us. Boats from all quarters mention it.

The York State left Lasalle on the 19th. The Illi nois on the night previous rose thirteen inches, and continued to rise fast when she left. The whole face of the country is covered with water on both sides of the river for miles. There was very little freight offering, and prices low; warehouses full of grain, which will go forward to Lasalle as soon as there is an open river and caual, unless St. Louis merchants offer better prices. Between Pekin and Lasalle offer better prices. Between Pekin and Lasane there are probably twenty canal obats and barges sunk in the river—nothing but the tops of some being visible, and some not at all to be seen. The officers of the York State inquired the cause of the sinking of so many crafts, and was answered that they were sunk purposely, in order to "keep them tight." Strange way, this, to keep a boat tight by scuttling her.

A notorious character named Paudeen was shot and mortally wounded in a New York dance house. on Friday night, while engaged in a fight with one Dad Cunningham. The latter delivered himself up.

Charles Bodmann, of Cincinnati, the man who old the three mulatto girls at Lexington, is out in a statement in the Gazette, of that city:

Without my consent or connivance, it has heretofore been stated in the newspapers of this city that a relation of mine who lately died in Baltimore left me an estate which, with the exception of four negroes, I immediately transferred to other persons, who, I supposed, stood in need of it more than myself. These announcements, though unauthorized These announcements, though unauthorized the were substantially true. In disposing of the of the estate I simply consulted my own wishes.

In the disposition I made of the negroes, consisting of one man and three girls, I have only carried out the often expressed, wishes of the testator. I brought the man to Cincinnati and emancipated him. The girls, in strict and literal accordance with the request of my deceased relative, I brought away from the city of Baltimore and caused to be sold in Kentucky, intending at the time, as I still do, to appropriate the proceeds of sale to benevolent purposes. The statement that I exhibited to these gills "upapers of liberation." or in any other manner inti-"poses. The statement that I exhibited to these gills "papers of liberation," or in any other manner intimated to them that I intended to liberate them, is destitute of any foundation whatever. Equally false is it that I had in my pocket or withheld from either of them any certificate of Church-membership or other paper.

The Gazette is severe in its comments on Bodmann's communication. It takes him to task 'or carrying the three girls away from their friends and selling them to a negro dealer. It defends its correspondent at Lexington, who brought this matter first to public notice, and adds that he is a Southern man, whose sympathies are on the side of slavery; but he was moved by the tears of the poor girls, who were about to be committed to the tender mercies of a slave trader.

The Steamboat Race between the Baltic and Diana left New Orleans on Saturday evening. We presume they started about the same time. The Baltic was to be submitted to the people to see whether it was a constitution or no? The Senator from Kentucky says it could do no harm—only show an abundant care to submit it again and again to the people. Yes, try again. Col. Fremont would have liked the try again principle.

As to the cry of fraud, it reminded him, but he would not apply the maxim to Senators, that a lie well stuck to and often told is as good as the truth. Mr. Green continued to analyze the reputed frauds, admitting that frauds did exist, but none to vitiate the constitution. Further than this, no legal evidence exists to show that this Lecompton constitution does not embody the will of the people. If we go beyond the legal evidence, we strike at the very mann's communication. It takes him to task 'or leading the Diana at Memphis one hour and forty minutes, but the former had run out of fuel, while the latter had not. It is gratifying to note that the very best feeling prevailed between the commanders to of the respective boats. They will be due here about twelve o'clock to morrow night:

MEMPHIS, March 23.

The Baltic passed at 2 o'clock, 40 minutes, this afternoon, and the Diana at 4 o'clock, 20 minutes. New Orleans time. They ran together 45 miles last dight, and the Captains interchanged drinks. The Baltic was without wood and the Diana was supplied with fuel. Each had a few passengers. The Antelope took the Baltic's passengers at President's Island. There is much betting here.

An Obstinate Juror Imprisoned for Contempt of Court.—In the Chicago Court of Common Pleas, on Saturday, a juror named Ripley, in the case of Canavan vs. the city, for damages received by falling off a sidewalk, was imprisoned, by order of the court, for contempt in holding out from agreeing with his fellows, during two days and nights, on the ground that he would not "bring in a verdict for any damned city, as he was opposed to all corporations." Tuesday's Proceedings—Continued.

WASHINGTON, March 23.

Senate.—Mr. Green continued. He said the statement that nineteen counties were disfranchised in Kansas was meant to deceive. Those counties were wildernesses without inhabitants. He defended the legality of the early steps for the formation of the Lecompton constitution, denied the assertions of the Senator from Vermont (Foster) that there were broken piedges on the part of Walker to the President. Everybody knows that Walker was in favor of submitting the constitution to the people. He advocated it, but had no power to pledge it. The Senator from Illinois says the only reason they did not submit the whole constitution was because it was said it would be voted down. Who said so? Nobody but the Senators from Illinois and Michigan. The great question is: Does the constitution embody the will of the people, which is legally expressed? The rules of evidence are the same in equity as in law, and we cannot take flying rumors or the opinions of Governors as evidence. That course is fraught with danger, and if carried into effect its ultimatum would bring bristling bayonets and cannon before the walls of the capitol to substitute the opinions of a mob for the forms of law. All the legal forms having been complied with in forming the Lecompton constitution, it was a completed fact, and the people had no right to vote whether or not it was a constitution.

What would Senators say if the constitutions of WASHINGTON, March 23.

does not embody the will of the people. If we go beyond the legal evidence, we strike at the very principle of liberty. He admitted that the Senators from Illinois, Michigan, C. difornia, and Kentucky were not influenced in their acts by the existence or non-existence of slavery, but they were assisting to build up a party dangerous to the Union and whose fundamental principle, just enunciated, is "no more slave States." Had it not been for them, "no more slave States." Had it not been for them, Kansas, many weeks since, would have been a young sister in the federation of States. Among other things, he said that Black Republicanism was crushing out true Democracy in its course, and would never meet its barrier till it met the cannon of the South. He concluded by expressing his ardent aspirations for the consolidation and permanency of the Democratic party. It is of no importance that Gen. Calhous has given certificates to the free State party. The principle involved is one vital to the South and the North, for the interests of both are so interwoven that they cannot be severed without injury to both. Mr. Green then referred to the state. ry to both. Mr. Green then referred to the statement of Mr. Douglas that the constitution can only be changed before 1864 by the exercise of a revolutionary right. This is not so. New York and other States had done it, and the provision was inserted with a similar interpretation on the Kansas bill of rights. The people must have that right to change rights. The people must have that right to change their constitution in a legal way, otherwise they could not regulate their own affairs but would be

1st. To strike out the preamble and insert the Kansas did by a convention of delegates, called and assembled at Lecompton, on the 9th of September, 1857, form for themselves a constitution and State government, which said convention having asked admission of the Territory into the Union, as a State, upon an equal footing with the original States

c." Carried.

2d. To amend section 2d by adding the following clause: "That nothing in this act shall be construed to abridge or infringe any right of the people asserted in the Kansas constitution, at all times to alter, reform, or abolish their form of government in such manner as they may think proper, Congress he a manner as they may think proper, Congress here-by disclaiming any authority to intervene or de-clare the construction of any State, except to see that it is republican in form and not in conflict with the Constitution of the United States." This amendment was agreed to yeas 31, nays 23.

3d. A verbal amendment in the 11th line of the 2d section of the bill to cancel the word "of" in the sentence of the ordinance of said constitution, and substitute therefor the words "annexed to," making it read, "in the ordinance annexed to said constitution." Carried.

Mr. Pugh withdrew his amendment of March 2d to the amendment of Mr. Green, and substituted another, setting forth that the Federal laws, not inanother, setting forth that the Federal laws, not mapplicable, be extended into the State of Kansas; that a judicial district be formed, and that a Judge, District Attorney, and U. S. Marshal be appointed and paid as in Iowa. This amendment was agreed -yeas 37, nays 19.

"Mr. Crittenden moved a substitute for the bill in ubstance that the constitution framed by the Lecompton Convention be submitted to the people of Kansas now; that if it be approved the President shall admit Kansas by proclamation. If it is re-jected the people of the Territory shall call a Convention to frame a new constitution. The substitute makes a special provision against the occurrence of House .- Mr. Howard maintained that there was House.—Mr. Howard maintained that there was nothing clearer than that the admission of a new State was in the nature of a contract. If the people were not represented, the admission would not only be intervention but oppression. He denied that Kansas was properly represented here. Its constitution was the work of a few reckless men in the Territory. The Legislature which brought the Lecompton convention into existence never had a legal existence, and no recognition on the part of any branch of the government could give it validity. If a constitution marked with fraud was forced upon the people of Kansas, there would be no longer ty. If a constitution marked with fraud was forced upon the people of Kansas, there would be no longer peace, but the worst of all tyranny practiced toward them; their rights trampled down and self-government denied; but they will proclaim in a voice of thunder that "resistance to tyranny is obedience to God."

Mr. Burnett said that the Parall!

Mr. Burnett said that the Republican party was responsible for all the trouble and revolutionary spirit in Kansas by sending armed emigrants to exclude from the Territory Southern property. Those who advocated the Topeka constitution, which was begotten in the hot-bed of treason, now undertake to upbraid the friends of the Lecompton constitution, which comes here in nursuance of law. Such begotten in the bot-bed of treason, now undertake to upbraid the friends of the Lecompton constitution, which comes here in pursuance of law. Such hypocrisy has not a parallel in the history of the world. The party which declares "no more slave States," will ultimately attempt to carry out its principles in the slave States themselves. The time is rapidly approaching for action, and when the question shall be settled there will be no necessity to read men out of the party, for every one, whether in the North or South, will have his true position assigned him.

Mr. Blair said those who were elected as friends of the President and the President himself have fully exposed their forfeiture of the pledges that the people of Kunsas should decide the character of their own institutions. Hateful as is the design to force on Kansas a constitution abhorred by her people by low and mean frauds; hateful as are the crimes which have held Kansas in subjugation; still more hateful is the design deliberately to extend by conspiracy slavery to the whole country. Under the opinion of the Supreme Court in the Dred Scott case, the government has contributed power to drive white men out of Kansas to make way for slavery. There was a time when the Democratic party took ground against the privileged classes, but now it arrays itself against free labor and in favor of those who seek to wrest territory from freemen and plant it with slaves. That party is as much the servile who seek to wrest territory from freemen and plant it with slaves. That party is as much the servile tool of the slave oligarchy as the negres themselves.

tool of the slave oligarchy as the negres themselves. Mr. Potter attributed the present agitation to the violation of its pledges by the Democracy by repealing the Missouri compromise, thus opening territory to slavery, which gives no repose to its victims, white or black. He spoke of the Lecompton constitution as the Juggernaut of slavery—an infernal machine invented by devils to crush out the manhood of its victims; and alluded to Calhoun as a depraved villain who called to his aid base tools for his unholy designs. The President, in his Kansas message, had indulged in false, intemperate, and undignified accusations. He had endorsed frauds, atrocities, and swindles. In justifying the free State movements, Mr. Potter rejoiced that the spirit of 1776 was not extinct and that Americans still rebel against oppression. Adjourned.

He watched him for some time, and finally became satisfied that his suspicions were well founded, when he wrote to Mr. Garver in regard to it. He was taken to Springfield, and, after examination, was committed to jail in default of $2,000 bail for his appearance at court. [Correspondence of the Commercial Advertiser.]

LONDON, March 5, 1858.

The events of the past week have been interesting, but have involved no new or unexpected turn either in politics or monetary affairs.

On the evening of the 2d Lord Derby made his statement to Parliament regarding the circumstances under which he accepted office and his views of future policy. He denied that his party had entered either directly or indirectly into any plan for the defeat of the late Cabinet. Their combination with the Manchester men in the condemnatory vote on the conspiracy bill was unpremeditated, and its results took them by surprise.

In stating his intended measures he made it plain that he contemplates adapting himself to the track of his predecessors—the only method, indeed, by which he can hope to secure even a short tenure of office.

which he can hope to secure even a short tenure of office.

A bill for the abolition of the East India Company, similar in all its main features to that proposed by Lord Palmerston, is speedily to be introduced. The concessions to the French Government, contemplated in the conspiracy bill, are likewise to be carried through; but the dispatch of Count Walewski, the delay in replying to which caused the fall of Lord Palmerston, is to be answered forthwith, of course with spirit.

The China war, having proved successful, is to be pushed to the best possible results. The Derby party, in their former conjunction with the Manchester, or peace party, as it might have been called at that time, out-voted the Government upon it last

His Lordship, however, is glad it has been crown-His Lordship, however, is glad it has been crowned with triumph, the fact that if the war was unjust he ought to have wished it to fail not seeming to present itself to him as necessarily a logical conclusion. The question of a reform bill was the only one on which he partially staggered. Even on this, however, he is prepared for a good deal. He will forthwith endeavor to perfect a measure that shall satisfy all reasonable expectations, but he cannot hope to accomplish it this session. Next year he will be ready with it.

An opinion generally prevails that the new Cabinet will last through the present session. Of course it could be defeated at any time, but in that case Lord Derby would resort to a dissolution, and as this Parliament has existed only a year, gentlemen who have so recently fought for their seats are natwho have so recently longing for their seats are naturally indisposed to precipitate another election. So long, therefore, as Lord Derby abstains from provoking any violent feeling by novel or high-handed schemes, he will meet with toleration on But it is in the management of our relations with

France and the Continent that his Ministry is distrusted. The belief in some circles is that Lord Malmesbury, with the most grandiloquent disavowals, will truckle to Louis Napoleon in a manner that has never yet been realized—or at least that he will be tricked by that astute personage until something comes out to set the whole country in a stir and has never yet been realized—or at least that he will be tricked by that astute personage until something comes out to set the whole country in a stir, and that then a new expulsion will occur. A few shrewd observers are disposed to think that so far from this being delayed till the end of the session, two or three months will be sufficient to bring it about.

The moment any difficulty arises, Lord Palmerston will again be the man of the time. The public are evidently disconcerted at his overthrow. They wanted to have their retort upon France, but are beginning to question whether they have not paid too dearly for it. They see, moreover, the illustration they have given of popular caprice. After a long life of seventy-four years, he was selected by them with acclamation at a period of high emergency. Through all the labors of that crisis he has served them with boldness and efficiency, and because he failed for a moment to gratify a national impulse, they have suddenly turned him off to be succeeded by those who do not even pretend to enjoy their confidence.

An impression is gaining ground, moreover, that even if any mistake was committed in delaying to answer the offensive French dispatch, it most likely lies at the door of Lord Clarendon, the Minister for Foreign Affairs. Of course a Premier must be answerable for his subordinates, and stand or fall by swerable for his subordinates, and stand or fail by their acts; but the suspicion that he has suffered for an indirect rather than a direct piece of mismanagement predisposes all persons to wish that he could be recalled, and re-constitute his cabinet so as to exclude the real blunderer.

Those who recollect that when Lord Clarendon was Vicerow in Labord by his head the editor of a was Vicercy in Ireland he bribed the editor of a newspaper to write in behalf of law and order; that at the Paris conference, after the Russian war, he subscribed to the attack made by Louis Napoleou on the liberty of the press in Belgium; and that at a later period he had the folly to mix himself up in the Nigargana operation by allowing a small quantum. the Nicaraguan question by allowing a small quantity of arms to be furnished to Costa Rica, cannot resist the conviction that he has committed acts of rests the converted that he had be commented acts of the most momentous question that have come within his scope; and any one of which should be held to disqualify him ever for being placed in a leading position among English statesmen. Weakness at the chief moment of trial seems to be his peculiar characteristic. No one could make a more ready, agreeable, or plausible statement on any of the ordinary questions that usually present themselves, but upon any point where vigor of character and the force of conscientious conviction are required, and where pliability would be fatal, he could never inspire confidence.

The movements in France daily occupy attention The movements in France daily occupy attention and cause great languor in the funds, in the face of an easy money market. Strangely there are two causes of apprehension, each distinctly opposite. A majority still believe the Emperor to be a "faithful ally," and fear lest some new conspiracy should disturb his rule. A less sanguine minority think that any dangers that may be approaching will prove of a very different kind.

DUELLING IN EUROPE.-A letter from Koningsburg of the 16th ult. says:

When on the 11th, Gen. de Plewhe presented him-self at Truterau, and Counsellor Jachmann refused to receive him, he asked to speak to Lt. Jachmann, who conducted him to his room and made him sit down. The General asked whether it was by order of his parent that he had refused admission to the of his parent that he had retused admission to the house to his (the General's) son, and the Lieutenant replied in the affirmative. The General then asked whether he (the Lieutentant) shared in the opinion of his parents in the matter, to which the Lieutenant replied that his opinion had nothing to do with ant replied that his opinion had nothing to do with the affair, but that as he was interrogated on the subject, he was bound to declare that his views on the subject erfectly coincided with those of his family. "If that is the case," said the General, "you are an infamous wretch, and you shall fight me to the death," and he then retired. The Lieu-tenant laid the affair before the Council of Honor of his regiment who for three days made vain efforts. his regiment, who for three days made vain efforts to bring about an amicable arrangement. General de Plehwe admitted the correctness of the facts advanced by the Lieutenant, but refused to come to any understanding with the Council of Honor, say ing that, as a General, he knew what he had to do. and that, as a General, he knew what he had to do.
A duel with pistols at eight paces distance took place on the 13th, in presence of Captain de Schlichting, second of the General; Lt. de Lehwaldt, second of M. Jachmann, and a council of honor, composed of five officers. The General advanced to within two paces of the barrier and aimed. Seeing that his adversary did not move, he called out in a loud voice, this treat Lebwagn, what does this mean? I do. "Lieutenant Jachmann, what does this mean? I do not understand it; you must fire." The Lieutenant shook his head, but did not move. "Gentlemen," said the General, "I beg you to advise the Lieutenant to fire." As Jachmann still remained motionless, the seconds observed that the General might fire first if he chose, and he did so. The ball entered his adversary's mouth, broke the jaw, and passed out at the neck. After staggering for a moment. Jachmann advanced a few paces and fired. His ball entered the heart of the General, who fell dead on the spot. Every one who had been engaged in this unfortunate affair rendered homage to the moderation and conciliatory spirit evinced by Lieut.

EXPLORATION OF THE AMOOR RIVER BY AN AMER-ICAN -Mr. Collins, the American Consul of the Amoor river, recently obtained permission of the Russian Government to explore it, and he has sent to the Government at Washington the result of his

Mr. Collins states that the whole of this river, for a distance of two thousand six hundred miles, is susceptible of steam navigation, and the country drained by the Amoor has a population of about five millions. There are already four vessels trading from San Francisco to the Amoor, two from Boston, and two from Hong Kong—the latter being owned by American houses. The Russian Government is rapidly extending its dominions in the Amoor country, and the last year two iron steamers, built in Philadelphia for the Russians, were shipped around Cape Horn and put up at the mouth of the Amoor, for the purpose of trade and exploration. Mr. Collins states that the Russian Government desires that the Americans should have all the advantages of Mr. Collins states that the whole of this river, for the Americans should have all the advantages of the great trade of this new country, and hold out every inducement for that purpose. After reaching the mouth of the Amoor, the theatre of his consul-ship, he thought he had discovered so many facts of great importance to the commerce of the United States that he determined to return immediately and report to his Government. The report which he has made to the Secretary of State occupies some 250 pages of closely written manuscript, and is condensed account of the country in the vicinity the navigable waters of the Amoor, its population trade, products, &c , as well as suggestions as to the proper articles of commerce which our people may export here with profit.

You hereby promise and declare on the receipt of your diploma that you will maintain the honor, dignity, and respectability of the legitimate profession in which you have been educated, and that you will neither countenance nor affiliate with any system of irregular practice, nor engage either in the manufacture, sale, or recommendation of "quack" nostant walkings, nor countenance the truns or patent medicines, nor countenance the practice of the senseless dogmas of Hydropathy, Homeopathy, or Thompsonianism, under the penalty of having the degree conferred upon you revoked by your Alma Mater.

A Philadelphia letter says:

Yesterday afternoon, as a member of the common council was passing through Independence Square, he was accosted by a beggar, who related such an affecting tale that he was induced to give him a quarter of a dollar. His surprise may be imagined when, after proceeding a short distance, he was hailed by the mendicant, and his attention called to the fact that the coin would only pass for twenty cents, it being a Spanish quarter! He took good care, however, to remain in possession of it.

DIP OF THE MAGNETIC NEEDLE,-It is known to those who have devoted attention to the dip of the magnetic needle, in surveying or otherwise, that there is a diurnal variation or disturbance of its action, as was clearly set forth in the letter which appeared on this subject in our columns last week. We find some very interesting information on this point in a letter recently read before the Royal Belgian Academy of Science by the Secretary, M. Quetelet, and received from him by the Swedish philosopher. M. Hansteen. opher, M. Hansteen.

opher, M. Hansteen.

The latter states in his letter that, from observations made in four summer months with a dipping needle and unfilar and bifilar horizontal needles, he has come to the conclusion that the diurnal variahas come to the conclusion that the diurnal varia-tion, observable in magnetic phenomena, is produced by a feeble perturbative force which turns around the horizon from east to west in twenty-four hours. "When this force proceeds to the south, the horizontal intensity diminishes, the inclination augments, and the declination has its mean value (about ten hours before mid-day); when it proceeds to the north, the horizontal intensity increases, the inclination diminishes, and the declination assumes its mean value, which takes place about an hour before express; when it proceeds toward the weet or the contents. sunset; when it proceeds toward the west or the east, the respective declination augments or diminishes (one hour after mid-day, eight hours before mid-day or mid-night)."

The regular inclination or dip of the needle, which is now decreasing, will reach its minimum, Hansteen in 1878 and it has all is now decreasing, with reach its minimum, Hansteen thinks, in Western Europe in 1878, and it has already reached it in Siberia. It was at its maximum in Europe in 1678, thus indicating a period of two hundred years between the extremes in the dip of the needle. The decrease has proceeded at the rate of 2,316, or about two minutes and a third per anapure—Scientific American. -Scientific American.

Singular Life Preserver.—A religious gentleman inform, us that a shilling Testament, purchased in New Orleans previous to the Mexican war, not only saved the life of the possessor, but was the means of saving his soul. It was in this way: A young Illinois girl purchased a small Testament for four dozen eggs, at three cents per dozen. When her brother was about to start for Mexico as a volunteer the nut it into his vest pocket. There it remained brother was about to start for Mexico as a volunteer she put it into his vest pocket. There it remained, wrapped in the same paper and in the same pocket, until the battle of Buena Vista, when the wearer received a wound through the Testament, which broke the force of the bullet, which lodged in his breast, and sent him to the hospital. There he read his book, and has since turned out a missionary prescher.

NATIONAL EXPENDITURES—Items Reviewed—More Likely to be Increased than Diminished.— The great and increasing expenses of the Federal Government are the subject of much attention. The expenditures have risen within a few years from twenty to seventy millions. It would seem that they are not seventy minions. It would seem that they are not entirely within the control of Congress, for every year a large amount of deficiencies are to be provided for by that body. Congress could not, of course, have foreseen the vast expenses growing out of the Indian hostilities in Oregon and Washington, nor even those attending the expedition to Utah. It now begins to be seen and felt that the responsibility of convertended denyingous involves great and conof our extended dominions involves great and con-tinually increasing expenditures, and under circum-stances which forbid the application of a strict sysstances which forbid the application of a strict system of accountability.

The theater of military operations is in the interior, and on the shores of the Pacific; and the military stations are widely apart from each other, and distant from sources of supply. Hence the cost of moving and supplying troops is very great, and out of all proportion greater than had been expected by Congress. The cost of maintaining our army is stated, variously, at from twelve to fifteen hundred dollars a year per man. It is, for some reason, far greater than the cost, per man, of maintaining armies in Europe.

The proposition of the executive for an increase of the regular army has, therefore, been resisted, and will no doubt be rejected by Congress. They are apprehensive more of increasing expense than of an augmentation of Executive power. It is strongly urged that, to whatever extent the army be of an augmentation of Executive power. It is strongly urged that, to whatever extent the army be increased, whether by regulars or by volunteers, the use for the same will also be increased. Means can be found for employing, whether usefully or not, double the force we now have.

But the military establishment forms but a single item that he had become in our expenditures. The but the initiary establishment forms on a single item, though a large one, in our expenditures. The navy comes next. As to this establishment, many plausiole arguments can be offered in favor of its augmentation.'

It may be said that we have a wider commerce, more mercantile tonnage, and a greater range of sea coast than other nations of larger naval establishments. Again, it may be said that modern improvements in ocean navigation and naval war-for have readered update much of the material reimprovements in ocean navigation and naval warfare have rendered useless much of the material we have got, and demand renewed preparations in ship-building, machinery, docks, yards, &c. We could very easily, therefore, double the expenses of the army and navy, without being liable to the charge of wanton extravagance.

Then, as to substites to ocean mail steamers. If we listen to arguments in favor of the system, we must admit that they are introvertible, or deny that we, like other nations, need such commercial facilities as speed of communication affords; or that we ties as speed of communication affords; or that we must, if we wish commerce, be content to obtain and retain it upon the conditions on which it is enjoyed by other nations. There are applications before Congress for the great extension of this system, and it is admitted that half a dozen millions could be prefellly added to that savice.

Another large item is the expense of collecting the revenue. It is now about five millions. It could be increased, and there is no proposition to diminish it. The expense is necessary, and because the system itself is defective.

Millions are absorbed every year in the construc-

Millions are absorbed every year in the construc-tion of custom houses of costly magnificence, not so much for the convenience of commerce as of politicians whose friends have some benefit from the job, and whose local popularity may be enhanced by pro-curing embellishments for their town at the public expense. If there is left any port of entry without a marble or granite palace, under the name of a custom-house, it has a claim to be provided for; and, in fairness, it cannot be disputed.

The Post-Office deficiences ought to be greater than they are, and will be, when equal justice shall be rendered to every part of the country, in affording it mail facilities and palatial post-office buildings and snug bonuses to favorites, under the guice of purchasing lots. The tendency is to the increase of the deficit in this branch of the service. It is very true that the whole department might be discovered with and the business of mail service left.

pensed with, and the business of mail service left to private enterprise, both on the ocean and the land; and on the land as well as on the ocean. As to the Civil List, it is generally deemed as parsimonious and stingy, though the compensation of almost every officer has been of late very much increased. Good reasons may be found for another increased. Good reasons may be found for another raise, or for equalizing pay in different branches of servi e, not by reduction, but by increase.

The Public Printing, inasmuch as it is a matter belonging solely to Congress, has been generally indicated as one of the leaks which ought to be stopped. But it is probable that the system will survive the present scrutiny, and it is certain that better reasons may be given for printing and publishing works which may hereafter be offered, than any that have been heretofore projected; for genius, science, and eloquence are not yet exhausted, and of making books there is no end. of making books there is no end.

Great, then, as are our national expenditures, they are more likely to be increased than diminished. It will be fortunate for the country if they can hereafter be restrained within the limits—ex-trovagant as they may Leem to be, and doubtless are—which they have already reached.

METEORIC PHENOMENON AT SEA -Captain Congdon, of the ship Caroline Tucker, from Havre January 16, gives the particulars of a singular and startling phenomenon which occurred on the passtartling phenomenon which occurred on the passage. The voyage was characterized by nothing unusual, the weather being such as is common for a winter passage. They reached the meridian of the banks of Newfoundland on the 20th of February; the weather was dark and squally, the wind from n. w. to n. n. w., the temperature 46 deg, and the barometer 30. The ship was put under double-reefed topsails and everything made snug for stormy weather. On the following day, the 21st, when between the southeru end of the banks and the northern end of the Gulf stream, the barometer falling to 29.50 and the atmospheric temperature changing suddenly from 59 deg. to 46 deg. a furious squall of rain and wind from the southwest came up at 2 P. M., enveloping the whole heavens in darkness. The heaviest part of the squall continued only for fifteen minutes, at the latter part of which a sudden report, as loud as a six-pound cannon, was heard overhead, and the mainmast was instantly heard overhead, and the mainmast was instantly enveloped, as by a dozen rockets falling to the deck. The ship was lighted fore and aft, and several of The ship was lighted fore and aft, and several of the crew were benumbed, as by a stroke of electricity. The chief mate was standing some twelve feet aft of the mainmast, steadying himself by holding on to the top-gallant halyards, which lead from the masthead by a chain and terminate in a leading block having an iron strap, at the instant the explosion was heard. His arm was paralyzed and fell helpless at his side, as if it had been struck by a heavy descending body, and for several minutes it was entirely benumbed. Several others of the crew felt a severe shock. On examination no serious infelt a severe shock. On examination, no serious injury was discovered, but the lead about the mast-coat was ripped up and the heads of the copper nails brightened. Carrier Conglor says they are they brightened. Captain Congdon says they saw several days before this, while near the edge of the Gulf, several meteors at the masthead, a thing very common in the Gulf, but there was no explosion. The sailors call them "compesants." But on no occasion, during an experience of twenty-two years at sea, has he witnessed so terrific an explosion, or observed such effects from the bursting of a meteor.

THE CHANCES FOR LECOMPTON .- Since the Kansas bill has passed the Senate much curiosity has been aroused to know its fate in the House. [From the St. Louis Republican of Tuesday, FROM COL.JOHNSTON'S COMMAND AT FORT SCOTT, UTAH.—We have perused a letter from Col. John-ston to a friend in this city, dated at Camp Scott, Feb. 5, 1858, and have been permitted to make some

The Colonel had received no communication from the government of a later date than the 22d of October, 1857, and justly complains that the mail contractors take more than three months to carry the mails to Utab, when their contract requires them to deliver it there monthly; and he adds: "I send no-thing by mail, nor should anything of public nature thing by mail, nor should anything of public nature be sent otherwise than by express."

Notwithstanding the destruction of a part of the train which was loaded with provisions and other supplies necessary for his troops, and in spite of the obstacles which still presented themselves, Col. Johnston did not abandon the hope of marching to Salt Lake City without a halt, until after the terrific storm of the 6th of November. We quote from his letter: "On the 6th November the march was resumed, and then commenced the storm of snow, and wintry cold, racking the hones of our men, and and wintry cold, racking the bones of our men, and starving our oxen and mules and horses, already half starved.

They died on the road and at our camps, by hundreds, and so diminished were their numbers that from camp to camp, only four or five miles, as many days were required to bring them all up, as it was necessary to give time to rest the animals, now incapable of protracted efforts, and to hunt for food. In this way fifteen days were consumed in making In this way fifteen days were consumed in making thirty-five miles to this place, the hearest and best place of shelter and fuel for the troops, and for shelter and grass for the animals. The struggle, then, amidst snow and Arctic cold (the thermometer at sixteen below zero), was for a place of safety. If any doubt existed before this storm of the propriety of risking the troops on the mountains propriety of risking the troops on the mountains before us before spring, or of the ability to accom-plish the march, the destruction amongst our draught animals, the necessity of saving all the oxen left for food, even if capable of further exertion, now dispelled that doubt and solved the question.

"The storm which Col. Cook encountered on the Sweet Water, and on through the South Pass, destroyed more than half of his horses, and a large number of his mules, although they had corn for them. In that high region, much higher than where we were, the cold must have been much more intense than experienced by us, and his animals, I presume, perished mainly from cold.

"I have the satisfaction to say, that the privations of the march were endured by officers and men without complaint, or, per aps, I might more justly say, with cheerfulness. The troops are in fine health and condition. The winter thus far has not health and condition. been so rigorous as to prevent often the daily in-struction of the troops. passes without suffering.
"The Mormons have declared, as fully as words and actions can manifest intentions, that they will and actions can manifest intentions, that they will no longer submit to the Government, or to any Government but their own. The people of the Union must now submit to a usurpation of their Territory; to have a government erected in their midst not loyal to, or rather not acknowledging any dependence upon, or allegiance to, the Federal Government; and what is not less impolitic, and entirely incompatible with our institutions, to allow them to engraft their social organization upon ours, and make it a part of our system, or act with the vigor and force to compel them to submit. This is due to the dignity and honor of the Government.

IMPORTANT FROM WASHINGTON. [Special Dispatch to the N. Y. Times.] WASHINGTON, Sunday, March 21.

The Administration men are working desperately to control the stampede in the House against Lecompton. There are some five millions of dollars' worth of contracts in connection with the Utah campaign, which are being used as levers, as far as possible, to affect votes. How and where will be clearly apparent when the vote comes to be taken. Of the army contracts already made, rumor names one for fifteen bundred horses, at a hundred and fiftyfor fifteen bundred borses, at a hundred and fifty-for liteen hundred horses, at a hundred and lity-nine dollars a head; transportation of flour at twen-ty-five dollars a barrel, corn at ten or twelve dollars a bushel, live beef at fabulous prices, &c. All this is believed to be useless. The hopes of making it successful rest on Northern anti-Le-compton Democrats chiefly in Pennsylvania and Indiana.

The Union to-day publishes Calhoun's official declaration of the election in Kansas, giving the Legislature to the free State men. This greatly Legislature to the free State men. This greatly exasperates the chivalry. My own impression is that the bill will pass the Senate by about five ma-when the bill will base the Senare by about hie majority—Reid and Davis being absent, ill.

When the bill goes to the House, I shall not be surprised if its opponents move the previous question at once, as the present count makes its defeat certain. Considerable debate had been designed, but Calhoun's last move so thoroughly vindicates the opposition of the South Americans that they will be likely to join the Northern Auti-Lecomptonites. be likely to join the Northern Anti-Lecomptonites in an immediate gibbetting of the Lecompton swindle.

THE MAN WHO KNOWS HIS PLACE.—A rare, a mythical character! It is often advertised, often believed in, but has never yet crossed my path. "Biggam is an excellent man—he thoroughly knows." It strickly way seek Biggam, acquain. "Biggam is an excellent man—be thoroughly knows his place." I straightway seek Biggam's acquaintance; for a man who knows his place must be one of eagle eye, rapid intuition, and rare modesty. He cannot know his own place without knowing that of every one else; and as this is the most difficult of all social problems, I am naturally eager to see the man who can solve it. On investigation, Biggam turns out by no means an eagle. I find him a man of servile, timid, cringing disposition, acknowledging with great alacrity the superiority of those who are more wealthy or of more consequence than himself. He is either a flatterer or a "mush of concession." He does not know his place; he only knows that it is pleasant for others to have their assumpsion." He does not know his place; he only knows that it is pleasant for others to have their assumption of superiority recognised, their opinions uncontradicted, their efforts unopposed. One of the most conceited men I ever knew—that is to say the man having the most exorbitant and unwarranted estimate of his own capacity—was one of those conceding unopposing gentlemen said to "know their place." He knew his place so little that he was always attempting to do that for which he was utterly unfit, and always failing, but verbally acquiescing unfit, and always failing, but verbally acquiescing in his failure, and saying "I have not your talents, or success would have followed."

POLICE PROCEEDINGS .- Wednesday, March 25. Henry Clifford, disorderly conduct and stoning the house of Elizabeth Alexander. Bail in $200 to answer a misdemeanor. Workhouse.

James Hughes, drunk and disorderly conduct and throwing a rock into a store. Bail in $200 to answer a misdemeanor. Workhouse.

Com'th by Hannah Jones vs. Wm. A. Moore, peace warrant. Mrs. Jones testified that Moore came to her house, quarreled with her, and assaulted her. Mr. Jones had charged Moore or Mrs. Jones with getting $10 belonging to him. Moore went to Jones's to see Mrs. Jones about this matter, when the quarrel occurred. Jones and Moore have been bosom friends. Mrs. Jones stated that she would get along very well if Moore would let her husband alone. He (Moore) had been trying to persuade Jones to leave her. Bail in $200 for three months for his good behavior and $100 to answer a misdemeanor. Workhouse.

City vs. Peter Noll, two ordinance warrants for selling beer on Sunday. Judgment confessed and fined $5 on each.

John Brown, disorderly conduct and abusing his family. Discharged.

Com'th by Joseph P. Gailbraith vs. Augustus Hatzell, peace warrant. Gailbraith stated that Hatzell came up to him, from behind, on the street, and knocked him down, and witness feared that accused might assault him again. Bail of Hatzell in $200 for three months. Sunk .- The steamer Flora was on Sunday sunk by coming in contact with the Rock Island Bridge. She was bound for St. Louis.

Raised .- The steamer Midas, which was sunk a few days ago, has been raised and gone to St. Louis to repair.

The steamer Monongahela, which has been for two months aground between Cairo and St. Louis, has floated off. She sustained no damage except breaking her larboard guard.

The steamer Alice, which has been aground since July last at island No. 11, lower Mississippi, is again afloat. The C. Bealer was nearly submerged by the river. The submarine was still alongside of her.

GREAT OUTRAGE.-Last night some miscreants entered the yards of Mr. A. L. Shotwell on Chestnut street, Mr. W. H. Stokes on the same street, Mr. R. J. The former was proprietor of the old Columbus street theatre thirty-five years ago, when Mrs. Drake made her first appearance before a Cincinnati audience. Mr. Greenwood was bill-poster for the theatre, and the first time he ever saw the play of Douglas, Mrs. Drake took the part of Norval, represented by her grand-daughter. They sat togother, calling up reminiscences of the past, and looked around to see if there were not others present among the spectators of the olden time; but they were alone. Reported for the Evening Bulletin XXXVTH CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION.

Wednesday's Proceedings. WASHINGTON, March 24.

Mr. Seward presented the resolutions of the Legislature of New York. They are anti-Lecompton.
Ordered to be printed.
Mr. Seward quoted the Duke of Argyle at the Livingston banquet, denying the opinion that the British government is tending toward the re-establishment of slavery.

Mr. Wilson presented a bill to facilitate communication with the army in Utah, as follows:

Be it enacted that the Secretary of War be authorized to contract for an extension of the American electromagnetic telegraph from Misconnican electromagnetic telegraph from Misconnican electromagnetic telegraph from Misconnican electromagnetic telegraph from Misconnican authorized to contract for an extension of the American electro-magnetic telegraph from Missouri or Iowa to such Western military posts as may be necessary for the public service, and that he be authorized to appropriate a sum not exceeding $500,000 to carry into execution the purposes of this act. Read and ordered to be printed.

House.—The House went into a committee of the whole and resource the service of the service o whole and resumed the consideration of the deficency appropriation bill.

Mr. Clark, of Mo., replied to the speech of Mr. Rlair, who he said ought first to set free his own slaves before accusing slaveholders of being oligarchists to strike down free labor. Such a course must have a most disastrons effect wherever slave and the strike accusing the strike the strike of the strike accusing the strike accu must have a most disastrous effect wherever must have a most disastrous effect wherever slavery exists. He advocated the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton constitution.

Mr. Blair, of Missouri, gave notice of his intention to reply to Mr. Clark's assault and reminded him that there were other interests in Missouri beside that of slaveholding.

Mr. Granger, of New York, argued against the Lecompton constitution and an extension of slavery.

WASHINGTON, March 24.

The overland mail, via El Paso and San Antonio, brings information to Lieut. Mowry, dated Arizona, February 7.

Gen. Gundari, the leader of the rebellion in Sonora, had been entirely successful, having defeated the government troops in several battles. At last accounts Gen. Gundari had surrounded Pechiera, the Governor, so as to cut off all hopes of escape. Gen. Gundari had massacred all the prisoners captured, and had proclaimed that he would hang Gov. Peschiera if taken.

Other letters say that Fort Yuma and the El Paso wagon road were progressing finely.

The people in the Rio Grande were much interested in the success of the Orizona Territorial bill before Congress, which includes the territory occupied

The Indians were troublesome in Mesilla Valley, and a general attack was feared. Nine Indians had been killed.

ST. Louis, March 24. The Utah correspondent of the Leader, under date of January 31st, says Messrs. Mowell and Sol Gee, who started for the Flathead country on the 24th December had returned. They reached the encampment of Capt. Magrow's command on the Papongie branch of Wind river, where their march was arrested by deep snow. They report the expedition all well, and the animals wintering finely, but the Crow Indians had come down and threatened to run off the stock, and had made suspicious movements. off the stock, and had made suspicious movements. St. Louis, March 24. The Democrat publishes a card from J. H. Lane in reply to a proclamation of Gov. Denver, in which he calls the Governor "one J. W. Denver." He accuses him of arrogantly usurping and ruthlessly trampling under foot the legislative department of the Government. He characterizes his acts as perfidious and tyrannical, and brands him as a calumitator privator tyrant and a fit appointer of an extension of the control of the cont niator, perjurer, tyrant, and a fit appointee of an oligarchial Administration which disgraces the na-

NEW YORK, March 24. A German banker named Ferdinand Arleder was arrested in this city on Tuesday morning, charged with being a defaulter to the amount of one million guilders from the city of Stuttgart, Germany, where he was one of the well-known firm of Arleder & Wess, bankers. It seems that both members of this firm disappeared from Stuttgart on the 8th of January last, taking with them all the money entrusted to their care. They have both been traced to this city. city.

The Chalmette Flog Staff .- The New O.leans Delta says that among the many interesting, if not the most interesting displays in the celebration of the birthday of Washington, was the eccorting, by the Louisiana Legion, from the State Arsenal to Gen. Palfrey's quarters, of the time honored, weather-beaten, and war-beating old flag-staff of the field of Chalmette. A relic snatched from the glorious pass—an almost saved originance of both, it this past—an almost sacred oriflamme of battle is this tattered old flag-staff of 1814-'15.

EVENING BULLETIN.

DISTRICT CONVENTION .- At a meeting of the delegates of the American party for the Wertern District, held at the Union engine house on Tuesday evening, March 23d, the following nominations were made for district offices:

City Tax Collector-N. L. McLelland, Railroad Tax Collector-J. J. T. Murray. Street Inspector-G. W. Griffy.

ALLEGED WIFE MURDER.-Mr. Jacob Stafford arrived in this city a few days since in pursuit of in-formation respecting his daughter, the wife of G-o. H. Lamb, with whom she left Hamilton, Illinois, on the 27th of last November. The ostensible pur-pose of Lamb was to go to Memphis. He returned alone and soid that the last did it. pose of Lamb was to go to Memphis. He returned alone, and said that she had died at Memphis, giving the names of physicians who, he said, attended her and the person at whose house she deceased. Some suspicions being excited, it was soon found that he had not been at Memphis, that no such persons lived at Memphis as those whom he had described, and that he had been at St. Louis. On insuring hore, the fother leaved that Lamb had seen quiring here, the father learned that Lumb had spent three weehs in this city, at the Astor House, on Franklin avenue; that he had with him a woman, Franklin avenue; that he had with him a woman, doubtless his wife, whom he represented to a certain person as a degraded creature upon his hards, and that he would give much to be well rid of her. He was advised to "buy her off," and in a few days he told the adviser that he had done so.

It is found that Drs. Johnson, Christophers, and Wilson, of this city, attended the same lady at the Astor House, where she had three fits of hysteria. When she convalesced, she begged Lamb to take her home, but he insisted that they should go on to Memphis. One day he placed her in a bagyage fellow-student, John Gathright.

Memphis. One day he placed her in a baggage wagon and took her away with him, since which nothing is yet known of her. A telegraphic dispatch was yesterday received stating that Lamb was arrested at his residence, in Mendota, Illinois.

A noble youth, budding into manhood, has fallen, and with him the blighted hopes and high, fond expectations of loving parents, an affectionate sister and brothers, of warm and admiring friends. Possessed of high intellectual culture, of noble and generous impulses, a stainless moral character, and loving disposition, he had endeared to him a host of friends, whose sympathies will be with his family in their sad bereavement. Parents, mourn not; brothers and sister, weep not for the absent; God has called him, and he is sone.

We would respectful.

We would respectfully call the attention of the public te a MARINE CHEONOMETER placed in our window, showing the exact time. It is entirely of American manufacture, and has been exhibited at the World's Fair in Paris in competition with the best London and French Chronometers, and also at the World's Fair in New York, and in every instance has received the highest premium for unequalied workmanship and correct time-keeping.

To our watch department we have secured the services of Mr. Ed. Helwig, of New York. Mr. H. can execute any kind of watch-work fully equal to Jurgensen, Frodsham, Adams, or any of the first London or Swiss makers.

In many fine Watches that are broken, parts are substituted greatly inferior to the original, the customer paying the full price for a perfect piece of work. The Watch apparently performs well afterward for a while, but is more imperfect and less valuable than originally.
